FIRE TRUCK MEN ARE ACTIVE HERE

REPRESENTATIVES OF VARIOUS MACHINES HAVE MADE
PROPOSITIONS.

DEKALB BUYS SEAGRAVE

Mack Truck Also Popular With Local Officials—Trouble in Princeton.

Representatives of four fire department apparatus have been here this week in conference with members of the fire department and Commissioner Gannon relative to an automobile fire truck, the purchase of which is provided for in the annual appropriation ordinance.

H. W. Crame representing the Mack truck and Charles D. Lillie of the Seagrave company were here yesterday and it is probable that Dixon's truck will be one of these two, as the specifications they have submitted meet the approval of the local officials, while there are some features about the other trucks not to their liking.

The Mack trucks are becoming very popular in the east and are considered the best by many eastern departments, the New York fire commissioners having recently placed an order for a number of them to be used in the business section of the metropolises.

Princeton Dads Balk.

While the Dixon city officials are negotiating for a truck, word comes from Princeton that the city dads there are at loggerheads regarding the acceptance of the truck recently purchased by that city. The following from the Bureau County Republican tells of the interesting situation:

The Americal-LaFrance auto fire truck for which the Russell administration wished Princeton to pay $5,500, was given a test Wednesday. It was also given a workout Sunday for the benefit of a delegation of city officials from DeKalb who are considering the purchase of a new truck to replace the one destroyed in a collision with a Northwestern train. The demonstration Wednesday was given under the direction of W. H. Johnson, Chicago sales manager, who closed the deal with the old aldermen, but does not appear to have changed the situation regarding the acceptance of the machine. Mayor Eckert and the five aldermen who refused at the May meeting to vote for an appropriation to pay the first installment, are standing pat and declare they will not accept it. Alderman Mudge of the second ward is the only member of the opposition who would even consent to ride on the truck during the trial spin. The mayor had important business out of town that day. Ald. Brigham was busy at his farm. Ald. Herick was too busy to get away and Ald. Jackson flatly refused to waste his time. The officials, they could not vote money for a city treasury in payment for the machine without violating the state laws in restriction they place upon city councils. They also hold their view is upheld by every lawyer in town except one. Aldermen Hanson, Evans and Matson and some of the firemen are enthusiastic about the machine and would like to see the deal concluded. The truck will be kept here until the dispute over the ownership is settled and is being stored in the engine room of the city hall.

DeKalb Buys a Seagrave.

DeKalb Chronicle: The city last evening decided to buy a Seagrave six cylinder auto fire truck for $5,475.00. This was done following the report of the fire committee which had been to Janesville to see a Seagrave in action.

The members were so impressed with the truck that they were unanimously in favor of the Seagrave and there was no argument on the proposition at all, the council concurring in the steps taken by the subordinate body.

LICENSED TO WED

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Arthur J. Meppen of Palmyra and Miss Jessie G. Neighbour of Dixon.

METHODIST PICNIC ON LABOR DAY

LOCAL SUNDAY SCHOOL PLANS
BIG TIME AT ASSEMBLY PARK
THIS YEAR.

The Methodist church and Sunday school of this city plan to make its big Labor day picnic of last year an annual event.

The picnic will be held on the Assembly grounds. A program of amusements will be provided, including ball games—one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Various classes and families will enjoy their dinners together on the ground, thus dividing the large company into enough small companies to make ample provisions for all.

The full program for the day will be announced later. Last year it was estimated that Methodists and their friends, who are also invited, to the number of some 700 attended the picnic. With the memory of a very pleasant day last year it is hoped this year to increase the number.

MILLER TRIED TO BUY SHAW CAR

NEGOTIATED FOR MACHINE FOR WHICH OWNER WAS MURDERED.

Joe Miller, the Dixon automobile man, was negotiating for the purchase of the big racing car of Harold Shaw, the Urbana boy who was murdered by Gust Penman early on Sunday morning, the murder being occasioned by Penman's insane desire to own the big auto which Shaw had been trying to sell for some time. Mr. Miller received a telegram from Shaw last week putting the price at $1600 on the machine which afterward was the indirect cause of his death.

PAWPAW FARMER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

PETE WILLIAMS SHOT TWO RIFLES—ONE NEAR HEART—MAY LIVE.

Pawpaw, Ill., Aug. 15—Special to Telegraph—Peter Williams, thirty years old, a farmer living on a farm which he and his brother, Tom Williams, rent, about three miles west of here, shot himself through the body yesterday forenoon with a revolver and lies in a critical condition at his home today.

Though conscious, Williams ascribes no reason for his act, though it is rumored that a love affair is at the bottom of it. Dr. Stetler of Pawpaw was called to care for the injured man and found he had put a bullet through his body, passing directly above the heart and piercing a lung. The bullet was taken out of his back. He fired two bullets. Presumably the first went through his clothing and lodged in the woodwork of his bedroom, where he retired to commit the deed.

The Pawpaw physician says his patient is resting quite easily today and has a chance for recovery.

Seelman, whom she has charged with desertion and statutory offense. The couple were married at Washington, Ill., Dec. 1st, 1896 and lived together until Nov. 21, 1912, when Mrs. Seelman charges her husband left her. The petitioner also asked the custody of the one child, Hester, aged 15.

T. Jennings, W. P. Utley, W. F. Miller, W. H. Stanley, W. J. Dougherty, Jacob Cantlin and Edward Devine.

FOUR CARS ON BRIDGE AT ONCE

A prominent resident of North Dixon reported to the Telegraph this morning that he saw four street cars, three city cars and one interurban, on the Galena avenue bridge at one time this morning. A rather heavy load for the bridge to handle and pretty dangerous practice.

TAMMANY HEADS MAY BE INDICTED

SULZER SAID TO PLAN COUNTER ATTACK ON MURPHY AND LEVY.

STATE RECOGNIZES GLENN

Claimants to Make Formal Demand for Possession of Executive Room—Condition of Wife is Serious.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15—Special to Telegraph—The second day of the dual administration in New York state finds the state capitol in a tumult of confusion.

A steel chain with a heavy padlock decorates the great seal of state. The pry seal lays under lock and key.

The way to Sulzer's citadel, the executive chambers, is bolted and barred, while from separate offices the rival claimants of the governor's chair, Sulzer and Lieutenant Governor Glenn, strive to govern the state. Glenn is becoming aggressive.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15—Men advising Governor Sulzer are responsible for the report that an attempt will be made in Albany county to indict Tammany Leader Murphy, Assembly Speaker Smith and Assembly Leader Levy for high treason.

Counsel for Governor Sulzer assert they will show that these three conspired in coercing certain members of the assembly to vote an impeachment of the governor. They claim it can be shown that Murphy issued orders to his legislative leaders over the telephone to obtain votes against the governor at all hazards. The penalty for high treason is death.

Glenn to Make Demand. Lieutenant Governor Glenn will make a formal demand on Governor Sulzer for possession of the executive chamber at the capitol and thus bring to an issue the question as to who is governor of New York. This was announced by friends of the lieutenant governor.

Mr. Sulzer, it is said, will refuse to relinquish possession of the chamber. In anticipation of such a demand he is understood to have prepared a letter flatly declining to accede to it. Expectation is that the rival claimants to the governor's chair will resort to the courts for a test case under an agreed statement of facts.

Mrs. Sulzer Critically Ill.

While the two men were planning for a contest to settle the issue the New York National Guard's allegiance was committed to Glenn and Secretary of State May was said to have refused to recognize the authority of Sulzer.

Meantime Mrs. Sulzer, who is expected to be the star witness at her husband's trial, lay in a critical condition in the executive mansion. Her nervous collapse, which was accompanied by hysteria, grew so serious that the governor sent to New York for two more specialists.

Mrs. Sulzer had a high temperature and a rapid pulse most to the day, but her condition was reported as somewhat improved at night.

Clash Over Extradition.

The whole machinery of the state government was demoralized all day as a result of the contest between the rival claimants for the executive office. The double exercise of authority precipitated complications with two other states—New Jersey and West Virginia.

The impeached governor signed requisition papers for the governors of these states for the extradition of prisoners in the custody of the state of New York. Whether the authorities in charge of the prisoners—the police commissioner of New York city in the West Virginia case—would recognize the requisition papers, whether the governors of the two states also would recognize them; whether, in the event of such recognition counsel for the prisoners would resort to the courts with a plea that the extradition of their clients was illegal, were unprecedented questions which the situation presented.

State Guard Against Sulzer.

With two exceptions, officials made no announcement of their attitude toward the claimants to the governor's chair. Lieut. Col. Edward B. Howard of the staff of Adjutant General Hamilton called on Lieutenant Governor Glenn and formally recognized his authority by asking if there were any orders he cared to transmit to the adjutant general, who was about to leave town. Mr. Glenn had none.

Locks Up State Seal.

Secretary of State Mitchell May also was reported by one of Mr. Glenn's friends to have recognized the claim of the lieutenant governor. It was

MARIGOLD WON DETROIT FEATURE

FORMER DIXON HORSE WAS AN EASY WINNER IN THE 2:08 TROT.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14—What a driver of the first flight, when he was a horse of fair speed, perfect manners and some class can do to a field in which the professional betters rated the pair real low, was shown today when Marigold and Murphy won a straight heat victory in the 2:05 trot from five nags, any one of which brought more in the pools than did the New Yorker and his speed.

Each of the starters had a record under 2:08, the fastest mark being 2:04 3/4 of Cheeny and naturally the Texas mare was made favorite. She brought from $200 to $60 for Peter Thompson, $35 for Oakdale, and $25 for Robert Milroi. The field, consisting of Binvolto and Marigold, sold for $25.

The time of each mile necessary to get a verdict was 2:08 3/4, a tame performance on a fast track by such a company of trotters. Marigold won easily at the end of each heat, and the real feature of the exhibition was the terrific speed displayed by Peter Thompson.

GOOD GAME ON FOR NEXT SUNDAY HERE

DIXON STARS TO GO UP AGAINST
EAST KIRKLAND BUNCH
AT PARK.

The Dixon Stars on Sunday will go up against the hardest proposition they have faced this year when they tackle the hard hitting Kirkland bunch, and Whitebread's new pitcher, Byrd, of Rockford will have his work cut out for him in holding the visitors. The Kirkland team is composed, according to all reports, of a bunch of fence busters and the proximity of the river will give the locals much worry if the visitors start any of their slugging tactics. The game will be called promptly at 3 p. m. in order that it may be completed in time to allow the Kirkland team to catch an evening train.

Y. DIRECTORS MEET.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. will meet at the association building Monday at 6 p. m. for luncheon, following which an important business meeting will be held. All members of the board are asked to attend.

NEW FREIGHT PLATFORM.

A new platform is being built at the Northwestern freight depot, the old platform having been worn out in a number of places.

said he would refuse Sulzer access to the great seal of the state, which is kept in the secretary's office.

Jersey Recognizes Glenn.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 15—Governor Fielder officially recognized Lieutenant Governor Glenn as chief executive of New York. He was forced to make a choice when Prosecutor Robert E. Hudspeth of Hudson county requested extradition of Charles Mason, under arrest in New York and wanted as an alleged pickpocket. It was decided the request for the prisoner should be made to Mr. Glenn.

Philadelphia, Aug. 15—Miss Mignon Hopkins, who recently brought a breach of promise suit against Governor Sulzer, left town for Albany, where she will try to serve a summons in person on the governor.

HIGH CLASS BOUTS AT THE CLAM BAKE

TONNERMAN AND BEALL WILL MEET AGAIN HERE ON LABOR DAY.

Some real high class wrestling is promised for the Elks' clam bake on Labor day with the signing this morning of Ted Tonnerman, champion welterweight of Illinois, and "Kid" Beall of Omaha, champion of Nebraska in the same class. It will be remembered that these two mat artists furnished some dandy entertainment at last year's bake when they worked for three falls, Tonnerman finally winning, but only after the hardest wrestling he was ever forced to do. Tonnerman won the first fall in 43 minutes, Beall taking the second in 28 minutes and Tonnerman the third and the match in 34 minutes.

Since that time Beall has engaged in matches with some of the best wrestlers in the middle west and has undoubtedly improved. Therefore it is certain the two will give "some" exhibition this time.

In addition to the big wrestling match there will be a preliminary bout and several high class vaudeville acts are being arranged for so there will not be a dull moment during the entire day. The indications are that the attendance this year will surpass that of last season, for responses from out of town show that many are coming for the big do.

SENATE DEFEATS RECESS MOTION

REPUBLICANS REFUSE EARLY
TARIFF VOTE — DEMOCRATS
DECIDE TO STAY IN SESSION.

WHEAT IS ON THE FREE LIST

Agreement by House Members Extending Discounts in Currency Bill Believed to Have Pacified the Insurgents.

Washington, Aug. 15—According to opinions expressed by the Democratic senators in caucus last night they are prepared to stay in session "until the snow flies," if necessary to dispose of tariff and currency legislation. This was the decision of the caucus.

Determination to take up currency legislation immediately following the passage of the tariff bill did not carry with it approval of any policy or commit the party to any particular currency bill.

The decision came after a motion offered by Senator Lewis that a recess be taken following the passage of the tariff bill had been withdrawn for lack of support.

May Aid Tariff Bill.

"I believe the action of the caucus tonight," said Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, will facilitate action on the tariff, because the minority may know just what our purpose is."

President Wilson made it known that he would not approve of any congressional recess until the currency reform bill had been disposed of.

Agreement by House Democrats on an amendment extending the proposed rediscout features of the currency bill to commercial paper based on staple commodities will pacify the "insurgents," Democratic leaders predict.

Refuse to Vote August 25. Senator Simmons, as manager of the tariff debate, made a formal request on the senate floor for an agreement to vote August 25. Republicans of both the "regular" and "progressive" elements objected.

Senator Gallinger, the Republican leader, tried to draw the Democrats into an announcement of whether they proposed to take up and pass the currency bill, but the Democrats declined to commit themselves on the subject.

Practically all of the session of the senate was spent on the wheat schedule, the fight against the Democratic plan of free listing the grain bringing out many strong speeches from western senators. The amendment putting wheat on the free list and striking out the ten cents a bushel tariff rate fixed by the house Democrats was adopted by the senate 37 to 32.

Agree on Money Change.

An amendment designed to make it clear that commercial paper based on warehouse receipts for staple commodities should be accepted for rediscout by federal reserve banks, proposed in the administration currency bill, was practically agreed upon in the house Democratic caucus. The amendment, to which Chairman Glass said the banking and currency committee would not object, was offered by Representative Underwood, majority leader.

The rediscout provision of the bill as drawn provides that the federal reserve board may define what paper shall be admitted to rediscout, but specifies that such definition shall not include notes or bills drawn for the purpose of trading in or carrying "stocks, bonds or other securities."

STERLING WOMEN FIGHT.

Sterling, Aug. 15—Special to the Telegraph—Messadams Hendrix and Houston met in the streets of the city last evening in bloody battle, starting out with a neat little sparring match but degenerating into a free-for-all, catch-as-catch-can, slug-bite-scratch-gouge-and-pull hair affair. They were separated by men,

HEAD OF BALL TEAM DIES

President of Philadelphia Club Dies at Ventnor, N. J.

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—William H. Locke, president of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, died at Ventnor, N. J., a suburb of Atlantic City, after a long illness.

Death was due to a complication of diseases. Mr. Locke became ill in February, soon after he and former Police Commissioner Baker of New York became the owners of the club. In May he was forced to give up his duties because of his serious condition.

The funeral will be held in Pittsburgh. President Lynch of the National league will be consulted regarding arrangements.

Trespassers Killed on Track.
A report on the general subject of trespassing has recently been issued by an eastern railroad company. Its police department, during the year 1911, spent more than $100,000 on its campaign against trespassing, or nearly one-fifth of the total cost of maintaining the company's police force. In the efforts of the company's agents to enlighten the public on this subject and to enlist the interest of magistrates and other local officers, attention is being given more especially to these trespassers who are not to be classed as tramps—well-meaning people who use the railway tracks as thoroughfares. In the statement on this subject which has been given out by the company, it is said that on American railways in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911, the number of trespassers killed was 5,284, and the number injured was 5,614. That is to say, there are more people killed in this way on the railroads than from all other causes combined.

ECZEMA SPREAD ALL OVER BODY

Began on Cheeks With Pimples. Itched Badly. Caused Disfigurement. Had to Put Mittens on Him. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eczema Left Him.

Roxbury, Ohio. — "When my little boy was two weeks old he began breaking out on his cheeks. The eczema began just with pimples and they seemed to itch so badly he would scratch his face and cause a matter to run. Wherever that matter would touch, it would cause another pimple until it spread all over his body. It caused disfigurement while it lasted. He had fifteen places on one arm and his head had several. The deepest places on his cheeks were as large as a silver dollar on each side. He was so restless at night we had to put mittens on him to keep him from scratching them with his finger nails. He could not sleep because I put those mittens on which would not allow him to scratch and then he would wake up and be cross. If he got a little too warm at night it seemed to hurt badly.

"We tried a treatment and he didn't get any better. He had the eczema about three weeks when we began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed him at night with the Cuticura Soap and spread the Cuticura Ointment on and the eczema left." (Signed) Mrs. John White, Mar. 19, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and even so little, that it is almost a crime not to use them. Sold everywhere. WILSON REBUKED BY PRESIDENT

Ambassador Reprimanded for Recent Statement Against Britain.

PAGE WILL MAKE APOLOGY

Bryan, Under Executive's Order Sends U. S. Apology to England's Foreign Office Because of Criticism on Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 15.—President Wilson, acting through Bryan, severely reprimanded Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson and apologized to the British government for the ambassador's action in issuing a statement criticizing the British foreign office.

Ambassador Page was cabled to call on Sir Edward Grey and inform him that President Wilson disclaimed all responsibility for Ambassador Wilson's action and for the language employed by him in his interview and that he regretted exceedingly that a diplomatic official in the employ of this government should have been guilty of such an impropriety. A copy of this cablegram was sent to Ambassador Wilson.

Escapes Abrupt Dismissal.

Mr. Bryan said that the president does not go farther at this time—meaning thereby that he does not abruptly dismiss Ambassador Wilson—because he takes it for granted that the action which he was obliged to take in the matter will be to the ambassador a sufficient reminder of his official duties.

It had been rumored earlier that Ambassador Wilson's interview would put in his peremptory dismissal, although he previously had been granted leave of absence until October 14. His resignation was to take effect.

Ambassador Wilson said he had no intention of embarrassing the relations between the United States and Mexico when he gave out the statement. He said he had no statement as a private citizen and that it was merely true.

Optimistic on Outlook.

White House and state department optimism with regard to the peaceful solution of the Mexican situation seemed stronger than was stated on high authority. John Lind is under written to communicate friendly to the Huerta government. Time is opportune.

Proceeds Cautiously.

City, Aug. 15.—Maneuvering to present President Wilson's message continues, but Mr. Lind thus far has been unable to break through the reserve maintained by the Mexican executive. It has been agreed tentatively that Mr. Lind and Senor Gamboa will meet again soon and it is expected that a decision will be reached then as to whether the note will be handed to President Huerta by way of the Mexican foreign office or presented personally by Mr. Lind.

Gust Penman Captured Near Danville, Ill.

Young Farmer Confesses Murder of Harold Shaw—Blames Tragedy on Drink and Desire for Car.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 15.—Gust Penman, the young Champaign county farmer sought for the last two days as the slayer of Harold A. Shaw, son of a rich Urbana man, was arrested in Ridge Farm, a village twelve miles south of here. He was brought to Danville, remained in a cell one hour, then confessed to the sheriff that he had shot and killed Shaw and buried the body on his father's farm. Shaw was slain by Penman Saturday afternoon near Philo after the two had left in Shaw's racing car, which Penman was trying to buy.

"I had been drinking—I was drunk—and possessed a crazy desire to own Shaw's racing car," he sobbed out in the jail. "I shot Shaw twice with my revolver while we were under a tree in my father's pasture."

"Later I went back and buried him. The ground was awfully hard. I dug in three places before I could find a spot soft enough. My recollection of what took place immediately before and after I shot him is indistinct."

"It's an awful thing—I would give anything, do anything to see Harold Shaw alive and well now. I don't see what possessed me to do such a terrible thing."

At 3 a. m. Sunday he dragged Shaw's body from beneath the tree, dug a shallow grave and covered Shaw's body. He then started for Danville, where he was arrested for not having a tail light burning, but eluded to go after placing the car in a garage. Penman then beat his way to Cincinnati, intending to continue to Argentina. Upon arriving there, without money and ill, he decided to return home, tell his parents all, and surrender. Arriving at Ridge Farm the empty box car in which he was riding was sidetracked and he was found in it fast asleep by two young men of the village.

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 15.—Gust Penman was brought from Danville and placed in the Champaign county jail. A hundred persons were gathered about the jail, but no threats were heard.

"I am glad I am here," said the prisoner. "I will get some sleep at last. I have not slept since last Friday night."

ATTACKS SLAVE CASE

DIGGS' DEFENSE SAYS GIRL ALTERED HER STORY.

Jurors Ask Judge Van Fleet for More Evidence—Government Admits Having Data.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—Lola Norris followed Marsha Warrington on the witness stand and repeated the story on which the government bases its prosecution of Maury I. Diggs and Drew Caminetti under the Mann act.

Cross-examination of Miss Warrington developed a story that on the way from Reno to Sacramento, after the arrest of herself, Miss Norris, Diggs and Caminetti, she had been questioned by a member of the district attorney's force from Sacramento to county and by Diggs. The defense tried to show that in reply to Diggs' questions she had denied several things which were necessary to constitute the offense charged against Diggs. This statement, the defense asserted, was different in important particulars from the story told to the federal grand jury and which resulted in the present indictment. The defense wanted the statement produced.

Mr. Bliss, one of the jurors, then asked Judge Van Fleet "If there is some evidence that may be material to this case that the government has not put down before this court and the jury."

The juror then asked specifically if the statement was to be produced for the jury.

The government admitted having data on the interview sought, but the judge said he could only make its production in court optional with the prosecution. Miss Warrington in testifying said she had only replied to questions then so as to shield Diggs.

PRINCESS THEATRE

Tonight the Princess will present a special feature. The Transfiguration, two reels, a splendidly costumed acted drama of Puritan life. A girl protects the man who ed her by refusing to disclose name. Abandoning her home, she is seduced by Indians and meets death. A faithful fisherman kindles the girl's love for his devotion and she at last finds happiness.

Curtain Hints.

When "doing up" lace curtains fold them lengthways and starch the edges only. In this way an economy in starch is effected, the curtains look better and they do not so quickly wear into holes as when starched all over. When buying window shades get an extra set of catches. Put one set at the usual place, the other about a foot lower. In cold weather hang the shades on the lower catches and leave the window down from the top. This gives perfect ventilation and prevents the shade from blowing about.

"COLD DRY AIR"

The only kind of air that will actually PRESERVE FOODS, the kind of air the AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR supplies to all parts of the Food Chambers.

This is the kind of weather that tests Refrigerators, this is the kind of weather that sours milk and cream and this is the kind of weather that spoils food and makes it unfit to use. Why suffer the inconveniences of not having your food kept in the very best condition, why not have the pleasure and convenience of an Automatic Refrigerator now, the use of one from now until cold weather will more than compensate for the cost, you know we have sold lots of them on a positive guarantee that they will prevent food flavors from mixing, of course this is made possible only because the cold air in the Automatics are bone dry, we will sell you an Automatic with the distinct understanding that it will be the most satisfactory Refrigerator you ever used and will preserve foods better than any Refrigerator on the market today.

Some of the people of this village have been agitating the Saturday night band concerts again and it would not surprise the writer if those entertainments would be started in the near future and continue until cold weather. It all depends upon the business men, and whether or not the concerts are started, the people well know that the band is willing to play with the proper support. The band say it is rather hard for them to attempt to play for when they start playing and larger crowds come to town then the business houses in order to wait upon their increased patronage get about 3 or 4 of the band boys away from the band by having them clerk in their business places and still expect a hand full of the band boys to entertain the people with a part of the band. Last summer the band could not do itself justice for every Saturday night there were at least three of its members engaged by three of the business places in town during the concerts and with this fact continually facing them, the balance of the band thought it best to stop the concerts before the crowds became too large to handle and more of the boys from the band would be taken away to wait upon them.

SUPERIOR VALUE OF ALFALFA

Evidence That Plant Furnishes as Near Perfect Ration as Anything Known to Agriculture.

Evidence accumulates daily of the superior value of alfalfa in the production of both milk and beef. A California Guernsey is reported as producing 444 pounds of butter fat in one year on a ration of alfalfa pasture and hay exclusively, the major portion of the alfalfa fed being hay. It is certain that this Guernsey was a good producer and capable of using her feed economically.

However, regardless of the ability of the cow to convert feed into milk, it is apparent that alfalfa hay and alfalfa as pasture comes as near constituting perfect ration for the dairy cow as anything known to agriculture. In the compounding of dairy rations it has long been regarded as necessary that a variety of feeds be used.

"MY ATTAINMENT OF THE POLE"

By Dr. Frederick A. Cook

Money From Home.

Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin the other day took the breath away from some of the employees in the senate by showing them a draft for $1,500,000. The draft had been sent to "Uncle Ike" in payment for timber lands sold to a Louisiana company.

This is the largest denomination of exchange that has been openly displayed in the senate since the day, many years ago, when Henry Gassaway Davis of West Virginia, then a member of that body, called one of his colleagues into the cloakroom and showed him a draft for $7,000,000, which he had just received as the purchase price of a railroad.

This Complex Existence

Kendall tiptoed to the bottom of the stairs and called "mother!" in a voice which to the startled mother might have indicated that he was one of those gentle, retiring children known generally as not daring, to speak above a whisper.

There was no answer. So, muttering to himself, "Well, I guess she ain't at home, or I guess she said she was going downtown today," he made a very subdued, genteel exit.

But Kendall had reckoned without his host. Before he had reached the street he was stopped by a voice from the front upstairs window. Mrs. Boyd had not been Kendall's another twelve years without having become more or less acquainted with his ways.

"Kendall, dear," she said, "where are you going?"

Kendall halted on the lower step and kicked the newel post viciously. Then he regarded the toe of his shoe with great disfavor.

"Play ball," he said. "Over in the lot with the fellows."

"But, you know, dancing school begins today," and his mother, sweetly, "You must come in and get ready."

She withdrew her head discreetly in time to avoid being convicted of hearing her son respond. "Aw, rats on dancing school! I ain't going!"

Then Kendall sat down on the step and bumped the railing with his bat for several minutes. There was no further sound from the house and he repeated his former remarks in a louder tone: "Aw, rats on old dancing school! I ain't going this year!"

"Say, mother!" he shouted, belligerently. "I ain't going to change my clothes, anyway. These are good enough for old dancing school."

There was no response.

"Aw, rats!" Kendall said once more. "I wish there hadn't never been an old dancing school. Then maybe I wouldn't have to go."

After relieving his mind by giving the steps several much louder knocks than before, he rose and went into the house, kicking each step as he went. He draped himself about the banisters and swung there noisily until the sound of the maternal voice came to him from the upper regions.

"Come up, Kendall, and begin dressing."

"Aw, I don't want to go to old dancing school," Kendall reiterated. Kendall's vocabulary was somewhat limited. "Say, mother, don't make me go this year. Nobody but sissy boys go to dancing school."

There was no reply. Mrs. Boyd was past mistress of the art of coercion by silence.

"Well, anyway, I'm just going to wear my school clothes. I'll take my pumps, but these clothes is good enough."

Clump! Clump! Clump!

"Say, mother!" said a voice from the depths of Kendall's closet. "I don't have to wash my neck, do I? Say, gee! I gave it a good wash this morning. I ain't going to wash it again this afternoon."

Silence.

"Well, anyway, I ain't going to wash it tonight before I go to bed if I have to wash it this afternoon. I don't see what difference it makes. I'm clean enough to go and dance with a lot of girls and a lot of sissy boys."

Splash, splash, splash, from the bathroom.

"Say, mother, I ain't going to dance with no girls this afternoon. Maybe I'll dance with the teacher, but I bet I won't dance with no girls. Girls, they make me tired!"

Silence.

"Say, mother, I don't have to put on a clean shirt, do I? I don't see what makes you want me to put on so many clean things. Gee! I bet dad'll be mad when he sees how big the laundry bill is."

Silence.

"Say, mother, this stocking's got a hole in it. Can't I wear the ones I have on? Well, anyway, I bet if I do have to dance with the girls I'll pinch their fingers so they won't want to dance with me again. Girls make me awful tired!"

Silence.

"Say, mother, my foot hurts me awful, I bet my ankle's sprained. Anyway, I bet it will be if I dance all afternoon."

"I'm going to wear my pumps over to the hall and then I won't have to change them after I get there. It makes me tired having to change my shoes a hundred times every day. Well, anyway, I'm not going to change them when I come home. I'm going to wear my pumps. Well, anyway, if I don't wear them home this time I'm going to the next time. Say, mother, I won't have to walk home with any girl, will I?"

"No son," replied Mrs. Boyd, comfortingly. "That's one thing I don't consider absolutely necessary for your social salvation. The time will come soon enough when you'll want to."

"Gee! I bet it won't!" said Kendall.

"Say, mother, the my necktie for me, will you? Girls! I hate 'em! Gee! when I'm grown up I bet I won't ever go to dancing school or speak to a girl or anything. Gee! Don't I wish I was grown up?"

"Say, mother, honest, do I have to go to dancing school?"

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HERE is an ugly kind of forgiveness in this world—a kind of hedgehog forgiveness shot out like quills. Men take one who has offended and set him down before the blowpipe of their indignation and scorch him and burn his fault into him, and when they have kneaded him sufficiently with their fists, then—they forgive him.

—Henry Ward Beecher.

MEATS.

The German sour meat is not well known among other nationalities, and is so altogether good that it should be better known.

German Sour Meat.—Add to a half cup of vinegar a cupful of water, one onion and a teaspoonful of whole allspice, one tablespoonful of sugar and salt to taste. Put a piece of meat for roasting in this, turning it often; let stand three days, when it is ready to brown in fat and roast, using the pickle to baste it when roasting.

Sour Batten.—Take a nice piece from the round, lay in vinegar, with an onion, salt, allspice and pepper, with one bay leaf; let stand three to five days, depending on the amount of the meat. Brown the meat in a deep frying pan, pour in the vinegar and sufficient water to cover the meat; simmer until the meat is tender. Strain the gravy from the spices, and thicken with flour before serving.

Mutton With Peas.—Cut mutton in serving sized pieces, brown and put to cook in a small amount of water; when nearly done add a can of peas and season well. Serve with the peas poured over the mutton.

Brown Stew.—So few people know how good a brown stew may be. Cut the meat, which may be the tougher portions of the round or a piece for stewing. Cut up in small pieces and brown in a little hot suet which has been tried out. Add a small chopped onion, and let it brown with the meat. Dredge with flour, which will give the gravy thickening, and cook with boiling water, just kept at the simmering point until the meat is tender. Serve with boiled potatoes. The seasoning may be given before the flour is added to the meat.

Hamburg Steak.—Season hamburger steak with a chopped onion, allspice, cloves, paprika and salt. When ready to serve pour over a cup of well seasoned tomato sauce.

One chicken will serve a small family for several meals. Fry the bits liked best, stew and have biscuits and gravy with the larger portions.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE reason that cooking so falls of its purpose, is that its practice is far below the rank of other human industries, and therefore often more of a hindrance than a help.

BROTHS FOR THE SICK.

Broth is a liquid containing the juices of soluble parts of meat and bone which have been extracted by long, slow cooking. When cold, it is more or less solid, according to the gelatinous nature of the ingredients.

The chief object in making broth is to obtain the largest possible amount of nutriment from the meat, so we cut it in small pieces and soak it in cold water, using the water as well as the meat in the slow cooking which follows. A tightly-covered kettle which will retain the steam is desirable, otherwise much of the flavor is lost by evaporation.

Mutton Broth.—Mutton broth is the accepted kind for the convalescent. Wipe a piece of the neck weighing two pounds, cut off all skin and fat and cut the meat in small pieces. Put the bones into the kettle with the meat, add cold water and let them stand an hour to extract the juices. Heat gradually to the boiling point, season with salt and pepper and simmer for two hours, but do not allow to boil. Remove fat and strain through a coarse sieve. Serve hot. In re-heating, use a double boiler.

Three tablespoonfuls of rice or barley may be added; soak the barley over night, add to the broth and cook until the grains are tender. If the broth is made the day before and cold, the fat may be easily removed.

Nutritious Beef Broth.—Cut three pounds of solid meat from the shoulder or shin in small pieces, put the cracked bone into an earthen jar, cover with cold water and cook slowly with the meat ten or twelve hours in a slow oven. A fireless cooker is an ideal place to prepare this broth. Strain through a colander, add salt and cook quickly. When cold, remove the fat. Serve cold as a jelly or heat to 170 degrees; not higher, as boiling injures its value.

Egg Broth.—Beat the white and yolk of an egg separately and add the yolk gradually to a cup of hot beef broth, stirring constantly. Add salt and fold in the white of egg, reheat carefully and serve hot.

The Dimdumeries

"Whachu doin'?" queried the small boy as he peered cautiously out of the back gate into the alley where the apartment house janitor was superintending the cremation of a rubbish heap. The small boy's nostrils twitched appreciatively as he sniffed the bonfire.

Mike, the janitor, looked all around and then cautiously said: "Hist!" and crooked a finger.

"What is it?" gasped the small boy as he tiptoed hurriedly out and joined Mike on the windward side of the blaze.

"It's a cillybration, of mine," the janitor explained. "Every wance in a while I go through the rites."

"What rites?" in an awed whisper. Mike poked in a recalcitrant way of exelator and, after swatting the blaze around the edges, put one fist on his hip. "You didn't know," he remarked, "that I was chief of the Dimdumeries before I came to this country, did you? Well, I was!"

The small boy dragged up a box that had escaped the blaze and sat down on it very close to Mike. "Tell me," he begged.

"The Dimdumeries," explained the janitor, "is a flourishing society in the old country that has communica-shuns with ghosts an' fairies—an' an' sperits in general. Whenever a Dimdumery wants to talk to a fairy all he has to do is build a magic bonfire on a spot hit by the light of a Chuesday night. That's very important, picking out the right spot. And lay the first sticks pointing toward the north!"

The small boy peered at the base of the bonfire, but the janitor sighed. "They ain't any spots that the light of the moon hits on a Chuesday night in this neighborhood," he mourned. "That is, except some that is occupied by buildings and otherwise engaged. But I say the magic words over my fires and pretend it's a glade I'm in and that there are fairies pecking out—"

"Did you—did you ever truly see a fairy, Mike?" the small boy almost whispered.

The janitor laughed condescendingly. "Did I ever see a fairy, now!" he repeated, scornfully. "Well, listen to that! Ain't I telling you how I was the chief of the Dimdumeries and what for would they be making me chief if I couldn't see more fairies than any other man in the country? There was one fairy who—look out, you'll be in the fire, now!—who used to pop up just as so-called an' smoke a pipe with me every time I lit a fire for him! Wance he said: 'Mike, I like you—you're a fine lad, an' you may have two wishes—anything you ask shall be granted!'"

"I know what I'd have asked for!" breathed the small boy. "An' airship an'—"

"Airship!" Mike repeated in disgust. "That shows your headless disposition! A real sensible person would have asked for a wagon load of money, wouldn't he? An' then he could get a fleet of balloons an' everything."

"Oh, of course!" agreed the small boy, much embarrassed. "Of course he would! But what did you do with all your money, Mike? If I was as rich as that I wouldn't work."

The janitor coughed and was very busy stirring the fire. "What did I do with it?" he repeated, scowling horribly. "I'll tell yer—much as I hate to do it. I stuffed it into old stockings, av course, and tuk a board off the wall and chucked 'em into the cavity. They was bamnotes—an' the rats and mice ate 'em up. I should have wished for a bank that cudn't fall, for my second wish, an' then I'd have been a rich man today. Instead of wishing as I did for—for—"

"For what?" demanded the small boy.

"Candy," confessed the janitor, sorrowfully. "I couldn't think of anything I wanted so much as plenty of candy and I got it and ate it all up and that was the end of it!"

The small boy swallowed appreciatively. "Still, you had it," he said philosophically. "That wasn't so awful bad. Did you get chocolate an' caramels and lemon sticks?"

"Oh, all kinds," the janitor said, loftily. "I was sicker'n you ever dreamed of being, I tell you! It kind of soured me on that fairy an' I gave him the cold shoulder after that, but it didn't matter because right away the prettiest fairy I ever saw began coming out of a rose bush that—"

"Oh, tell me all about it!" demanded the small boy ecstatically.

"Will-tee-lee!" came down from the back porch of one of the flats.

"There's your mother now," said Mike. "And anyhow—the magic fire's all burned out!"

A Nice Point.

"Every student of history knows that our Christmas customs are a development of Roman Saturnalia."

"Oh, surely not all!"

"I think so."

"No, no! There's no reason to suppose, for instance, that the Romans were all the time being hunched to do their Saturnalian shopping early."

—Puck.

EVERYBODY SAID SO

By F. H. LANCASTER.

"Without a wrinkle." That is what the teacher said about her school when she wrote to the superintendent. "Everything smooth as a summer sea. Sans pli." She was rather proud of the French she had picked up.

It was this way, mon ami. Somebody had been cutting logs off the public land. Old man Nadjarow said it was Esed Spiridon, and everybody said old man Nadjarow ought to know. Didn't he live right next to that piece of land?

It was Esed Spiridon who had cut the logs off the public land. Everybody said so, everybody but the 12 little Spiridons that came stepping lightly to school over the pine straw. Rain or shine, never late, never noisy. Brown by the sun, healthy with hard work, lean from light feeding.

"Troncon." Everybody boy in the school had been fought for that. It was worth just one bloody nose to say "stump" to one of the little Spiridons.

But Lucie Spiridon did not fight. She was not even disdainful—save toward Luc Nadjarow, who sat next to her in class—she was always head—and who worshipped her utterly from the sole of her slim bare foot to the topmost of her tossing curls. Small joy did he get of his love affair.

Ha, the poor Luc! He wanted to knock down every boy in the school, to slap the face of every girl—save Lucie. He wanted to tell Lucie that he loved her. And all he did was to lose his pencil. And little Esed found it!

Luc's little brother arose in his seat at the sight of that long, red pencil.

"Miss Nell, Esed stole my brother's pencil," he cried.

Little Esed jumped up. He could not speak English. He pointed helplessly at the road. "Je trouve," he whispered.

Luc spoke up promptly. "That's all right, Miss Nell, I give it to him."

"May I speak?" asked Lucie, and barely waiting the teacher's consent, she was across the room and had robbed little Esed of his beautiful find. And Luc's pencil was on his desk again.

Luc stood up hotly. "May I speak?" he demanded, and before all the school he said to little Esed: "That's yours. Keep it."

The little fellow looked at his sister, his lip quivering with the bitter pain of renunciation, but he returned so laughingly as a baby may: "Je n'en ai pas besoin." And Luc went back to his seat with his pencil. Ha, slapped in the face by a baby—before the whole school. It made him mad. He headed Lucie off on the way home.

"What for you didn't let Esed take that pencil?" he demanded, overtaking her.

"Esed say he didn't want it," she replied, without looking at him.

"Tain't me say your papa cut those logs."

"No?"

The blond ran up to the boy's hair at the door in her voice.

"I know, me, he ain't cut them."

"That's what I know," she cut in, coldly.

"If I prove your papa didn't cut those logs, you going let Esed keep that pencil he find?"

The girl's tone changed wonderfully. "May be I let him keep that pencil—you give him," she said, softly.

Ha! But it would seem that all the sweetness of that changed tone was lost on Luc. He said, stolidly: "You going be at the horse race Sunday? I prove it then."

"Begin."

"I want you to take this now. May be I won't see Esed next Sunday."

She took it—the red pencil, looked at him wistfully, and started up the hill.

Sunday! A long, straight track through the forest, and a crowd of happy people hurrying to the start or to the finish. Everybody had been to mass. Now for the horse race. Bien! Luc rode his own bay mare, a slim-necked little beauty, full of fire and long of wind. It was her first race. Dice rode the white horse, and the white had already been three times a winner.

There was a wild leap of excitement, a streak of red, and a cheer that shook the pines. Ha! and Lucie made herself look.

Dice was dismounting slowly from the beaten white horse, and Luc, hard and white at this proudest moment of his life, was pushing his winner a little closer to the cheering crowd.

"I want to tell you all something," he said, harshly, and there was silence, even among the lucky betters. "You all been saying it's M. Spiridon cut those logs. Des ain't so. It me cut those logs."

Riding away in his great loneliness, Luc laughed—bitterly: "Maybe Lucie would let little Esed keep that pencil now."

"Luc," it was a cautious, broken call, of one half mad with fear. Luc fell out of his saddle at the sound of it, and ran back to her.

"Oh, Luc, what made you tell, what made you tell them that?"

"It's true," he stammered, trembling at her tears. "It's true, true, Lucie."

He took her into his arms and comforted her. "I sell my mare, cherie, and pay for these old logs. She'll fetch good price now she's won race." (Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

MACHINE FOR CRUSHING OATS

Feed Bill May Be Materially Reduced by Use of Device—Operated by Electric Motor.

The feed bill of the man who keeps five, ten, or more horses can be materially reduced and the animals kept in better flesh by the use of an oat crusher to prepare this part of the horses' fare, is the assertion of those who have tried it, says the Popular Electricity.

The machine shown will clean and crush 2,200 pounds of oats per hour,

Oat Crusher.

enough to feed 125 horses eighteen pounds per day. The crushed oats retain their original moisture when prepared as used, and are more completely and readily digested and the looks and condition of the animals are better with less feeding. It is claimed that a fifteen per cent saving is made over the old way of feeding whole oats, which, if a horse were accustomed to a diet of eighteen pounds of whole oats per day, would amount to a bout 30 bushels a year using crushed oats. The crusher is operated by electric motor power

ALWAYS OTHER FISHES

By F. H. LANCASTER.

Volla! Pierre had never been drunk before. Had never done any-thing that a straight young man should not do until the "turpentine man" came out of the bayou and said to old man Etienne that he would give him three dollars a hundred for the turpentine rights in his strip of 10,000 pine trees. And that very same day Pierre came to ask old man Etienne for his daughter.

Hein! But the old man was rough on Pierre, and refused. But it was not because of what the old man said; it was because he saw Amanda walking to church with the "turpentine man" and could not make Amanda see him that made Pierre take a bottle of whiskey down into the bend of the bayou and get drunk. Yes, and stay drunk, sleeping most of the time till the bottle was empty.

It was the suck of the oars in their locks that woke him. Then voices came, and he listened:

"Dey say Pierre ain't going win race this year."

"Pourquoi?"

"Dey say 'turpentine man' going run his fast boat; dey say Amanda going sail wit' him."

"Ha!"

The suck of the oars died away. Pierre plunged into the bayou and swam until sober. "Pardieu, dere's more dan one girl in de world!"

Alors quoi? As soon as he was sober he went down to the store and bought two yards of very narrow, very pink ribbon, and he must have wanted it for a fishing line, because as he strode away from the store he was saying under his breath: "Il y a les autres poissons dans la mer, toujours. Ah, oui! toujours."

And so thinking of the other fishes always in the sea, Pierre made his way through the woods to old man Aloysius' front gate. He surprised Cecelia on the front steps. Pierre sat down beside her. And presently Pierre's thoughts came to the front with:

"I been tink, me das maybe you'll sail in 'Lis des Eaux wit' me on Fourth of July. Das make me proud, yes."

Cecelia was swept into silence by the rushing sweetness of this surprise. There was only the trembling strong fingers pressing a tiny packet into her hand, only the pleading of that pleasant—very pleasant voice:

"Das my color, pink. You going wear it?"

"Yes," she murmured, "I wear it."

It was a hot day, that Fourth of July, with a boat race on the bay. The regatta was to be run in three classes. Schooners, sloops and cat-boats. Some there were in that sweltering crowd who followed the flight of the schooners, but upon wharf and beach and bank every 'Calan's eye was upon the cat-boat race, and every soul of 'Calan's money was upon one of the two racers. The "turpentine man's" cat, the Kitten, that flew the blue pennant, and Pierre's 'Lis des Eaux, that flew the pink. They were well matched boats, and beauties, gleaming white with their broad belts of brilliant blue or pink; each with a big new sail, each with a lovely girl in the bows flying the colors she favored. They crossed the line at the judges' stand. Hearty cheering started them on their second course, and after the cheer one single voice like a dropping shot: "Watch out! he don't get your wind."

For whom was that warning meant? What was it worth? Perhaps one of the young sailors knew. Tense, with ever an eye to the girl in his bows, the "turpentine man" gave his boat every advantage his skill could compass.

Already the Lily under her reef was footing it after the Kitten, and already, but too late, the "turpentine man" had seen the white puff now beginning to turn black. It was too late to shorten sail now if he meant to leave himself a chance to win.

On they came, the Kitten and the Lily, and the squall, half a mile, quarter, eighth; while the sky darkened and the Lily, like one struck by a strong hand, lay over. But there was a sure grip upon her tiller and no flutters of hope or fear shook the hand that held the halyards. She righted gallantly under her reef, and with the foam curling along her rail, flew away before the rising wind. And then the watchers had eyes for the Kitten, and as they turned their eyes upon her the squall struck her. They saw her go over in the shivering water. Boats shot out, children lifted up their voices and wept.

Cecilia, looking back at the rescuers and their rescued, watched merrily.

"Dey most made some more fish," she laughed, and Pierre laughed also—with tenderness.

"You bring me good luck," he said, gallantly. He had fairly forgotten that Cecilia was herself "the other fish."
